

Abstract

The invention relates to a method for producing a shaft (22), and an apparatus containing such a shaft (22), in particular an armature shaft (22) of an electric motor-driven drive (12) that is brought to a nominal dimension (44). It is proposed that the shaft (22) be reshaped by means of material displacement (46) at at least one point until the nominal dimension (44) is reached.

(Figure 1)